Glencarlyn Days- An International Celebration- COMING September 10th-11th Volunteers NEEDED!

Glencarlyn Days is coming SOON!! The neighborhood's biggest event of the year will be held September 10 -11. This year we have an International Theme, with a full schedule planned. Friday Night Sept. 10th is the Community BBQ at Carlin Hall, where we will provide the burgers, hotdogs, sides and beverages for a suggested donation of $10/person, $25/family. Please consider bringing a dish that reflects your culture and heritage, but this is not necessary. There will be games and activities showcasing and celebrating the diversity of our community. Of course, there will be free ice cream for all the children! And a 50/50 raffle.

Saturday morning Sept. 11 will begin with our traditional Pancake Breakfast at Shelter #2 in Glencarlyn Park 8-10 am. $5/person $15/family. A Park Naturalist will bring reptiles to show to the children. We will take a few moments to acknowledge the 20th anniversary of 9-11. Breakfast will be followed by our Glencarlyn Day International Parade, complete with international dancers! Wear costumes and decorate your bikes, strollers, wagons. We will make international flags and a parade banner at the BBQ. Following the parade will be a Storytime at the Carlin Hall grounds.

Cover Art for the Glencarlyn Directory

As GCA completes the data collection, we are now accepting submissions of ARTWORK for the COVER of Glencarlyn Directory from our youth.

We are asking our youth, through high school, to create and submit artwork reflecting our community or park. One entry will be selected for the cover and the others will appear in the online version of the Village View. This art should be relatively simple, as it will be photographed and converted to black and white

The easiest and best way to submit your artwork is to take a photo of the completed work and email it to Julie Lee at: gcaspecial@glencarlyn.org along with your name, age and contact information (email and phone).

Alternatively, you can drop a copy off at my house. (Email me for the address)

KEEP THE ORIGINAL ARTWORK in a safe place until the decision is made. The selected artwork will be professionally scanned for the cover.

Entry DEADLINE is Sept 15. If you have any questions, please contact Julie Lee.

President's Corner

Leaders Needed

Glencarlyn Days weekend is fast approaching and I know everyone is excited. It is going to be an incredible event this year thanks to the organization, hard work and leadership of GCA V.P. Courtney Holmes.

Please thank her, and HELP HER! Use the Sign-Up Genius to commit. (Link on page 3 of this Village View and on the GCA website.)

In addition to Glencarlyn Days, GCA sponsors many activities throughout the year. As restrictions are lifted, we hope to resume many of these in the coming months. Over the course of the year we like to hold a Halloween Party for the little ones inside Carlin Hall, the Luminaria Sales and Holiday Party, a March Stream Clean-up in coordination with the Parks dept. followed by a hotdog and marshmallow roast, a "Spring Fun Day" at the Library Garden/Carlin Hall, a Community Yard Sale and more.

GCA NEEDS LEADERS to make these events happen. It takes one or two committed people to organize each of these events. You don't have to do all of the work. You just need to lead a team of volunteers. Recently, some of our stalwart leaders have moved away, "retired" or asked for replacements to be found. I KNOW there are many qualified people, even over-qualified, to take on these responsibilities. Whether you are a long-time resident or new to the neighborhood, you can easily take this on. There are instructions and a small budget for each event. If you are in charge, you can plan and lead these events with your own creative spin or follow the 'game plan', whichever is easiest and most comfortable.

We always encourage fresh ideas for new events that will bring the community together. The neighborhood scavenger hunt, walking tree tour, sidewalk chalk art and door décor contest are examples of events added during the distancing requirements of the pandemic. If you would like to organize a new activity please let me know.

I am constantly amazed at the creativity and generosity of our residents.

Please share your time and talents for the benefit of Glencarlyn. Please help me lead. Contact me directly at jfblee@aol.com or call 808-384-4954.

Glencarlyn Neighborhood Trick or Treating October 2021

How would you like to handle neighborhood trick or treating this year? Neighborhood trick or treating is not a GCA sponsored activity. However, after the success of last year's Saturday afternoon Trick or Treating event, I feel it is worth having a "discussion" about how the community would like to handle trick or treating this year.

Last year the community held trick or treating on the Saturday of Halloween between the hours of 4 and 6 pm. Signs were posted throughout the neighborhood a week prior, so people were aware. Treats were handed out from tables. blankets and clotheslines on front porches, sidewalks and driveways. With the good weather and neighbors outside in front of their homes, it had the atmosphere of a series of block parties. Fun was had by all, AND holding the event in daylight hours offered an element of safety.

Do we, as a community, want to suggest that trick or treating be held Saturday Oct 30, 4-6 pm? Or do we prefer to return to the original way of trick or treating after dark, usually 6-8 pm, on Halloween Night.

Please email your thoughts to Julie Lee at gcaspecial@glencarlyn.org.

We will announce the collective decision in the October Village View and in the GCA Updates.

She will discuss her work, share her vision and take our questions.

Please plan to attend Monday, Sept. 13 at 7:30 pm, VIA ZOOM.

Hold the Date: September 30 THE LATINO/A/X EXPERIENCE IN ARLINGTON

A panel discussion on the challenges faced by our Latino/a/x neighbors in Arlington will take place via Zoom on Thursday, September 30, at 7:30.

The latest in a series of events organized by the GCA's Racial Diversity and Inclusion (REI) Committee, this program will provide an overview of the history of Latinos/a/x in the U.S. and feature a panel discussion about the lived experience of Latinos/o/x in Arlington.

Notices and details about how to register for that program will be forthcoming in early September.

Previously during the 2020-21 fiscal year, the REI Committee organized and co-facilitated three workshops, all via Zoom, that focused on the history of racist policies and practices in housing and education, on Black-White relationships in Glencarlyn and elsewhere in Arlington County, and on how to actively foster greater diversity and inclusion in the neighborhood.

Additionally, the GCA passed a Resolution on Inclusion and Equity during the November 2020 meeting and – to reflect the GCA's commitment to fostering greater inclusiveness – changed the name of the association from Glencarlyn Citizens' Association to Glencarlyn Civic Association.

Most recently, the committee organized a walking tour of the Halls Hill neighborhood, guided by long-time Halls Hill resident, community activist, and author Wilma Jones, who had discussed her book, My Halls Hill Family: More Than a Neighborhood, at the committee's previous program in May. (The book can be borrowed from the Arlington County Library and purchased on amazon.com.)

Current members of the REI Committee are Tim Aiken, Sue Campbell, Deborah Elkinton, Brandon Hemel, Clara Johnson, Jeff Liteman, Rachel Porter, and Katherine (Pippy) Sickbert. As the REI Committee plans for next fiscal year, all neighbors that are interested in joining the committee or volunteering for events should email gcainterests@gmail.com.

Fairweather Retires as Manager of Long Branch Nature Center

by Steve LeSueur

As a young boy, Cliff Fairweather spent many days chasing turtles and snakes, studying insects, and building dams along the stream in the woods near his Alexandria home. But he didn't envision making a living educating people about nature. "Being a 'naturalist' is a relatively new profession," he says.

In college, Cliff pursued another interest, politics and international relations, and upon graduation he began a career in government contracting.

Still, Cliff enjoyed the outdoors and became an avid birdwatcher. He also volunteered for the Audubon Naturalist Society, monitoring water quality and performing other tasks that brought satisfaction. The tug of nature was strong, and so he eventually secured a grant that enabled him to work fulltime for the Audubon Naturalist Society. At the age of 41, after about fifteen years working for defense contractors, Cliff changed careers.

"I found my real vocation," said Cliff, who went back to college and got a master's degree in Natural Resources so he could pursue his life-long love of nature while helping others enjoy and appreciate the natural world. Cliff retired in July after nine years as a Natural Resources Specialist and manager of the Long Branch Nature Center adjacent to the Glencarlyn neighborhood.

Cliff oversaw the center's many education programs for adults and children, while also managing the staff that cared for the snakes, turtles, frogs, birds, fish, and other animals housed at Long Branch. Many in the Glencarlyn neighborhood will recognize Cliff as the friendly naturalist who answered their questions and, along with his staff, gave hands-on tutorials about the center's animals. He enjoyed immensely this aspect of working at the center.

"A naturalist is someone who interprets nature for people in a way that is interesting and inspiring, so that it motivates them to learn, teach others, and protect the environment," he says. "That's what I try to do."

Cliff also enjoyed walking through the park, talking to visitors along its streams and trails, and helping them understand the sights and sounds of Glencarlyn Park. The park is home to Red-shouldered Hawks, Barred Owls, box turtles, woodpeckers, and flying squirrels, and a stopping place for numerous migrating birds, including warblers, thrushes, Yellow-billed Cuckoos, and Great Blue Herons. And the streams and ponds are habitat for frogs, salamanders, and water snakes.

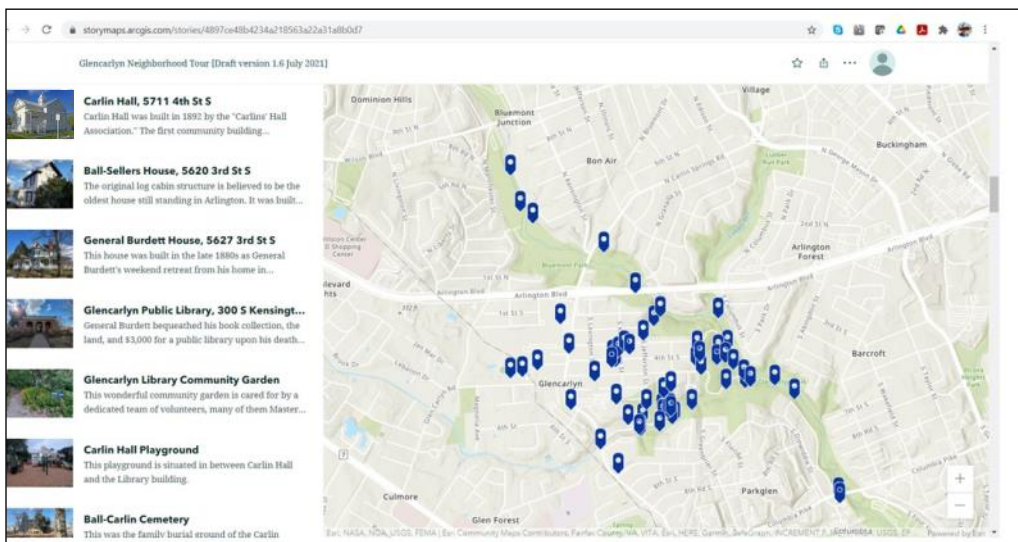

Cliff Fairweather, recently retired manager of the Long Branch Nature Center, poses with Stumpy, who came to the center in 1985. "Eastern Box Turtles can easily live up to 100 years," Cliff says.

"There's almost something new every day to see and catch your interest," he says.

The nature center depends heavily on volunteers, many from the Arlington Regional Master Naturalist (ARMN) program and local high schools. "We couldn't care for the animals or put on our many different programs without the help of our volunteers," he says. "They are essential to the services we provide."

Four Blazing Stars for the Garden

by Elaine Mills, Extension Master Gardener

Photos courtesy: Elaine Mills

Over the past two years, the Glencarlyn Library Community Garden has added four species of Blazing Stars to the newly renovated beds bordering the parking lot. These are all attractive perennial native wildflowers that homeowners may want to consider for their own gardens.

Dense Blazing Star (Liatris spicata)

Dense Blazing Star or Gayfeather (Liatris spicata), the tallest of these plants at two to four feet, can add a vertical accent and is especially effective when planted en masse in sunny to partially shady borders, butterfly gardens, and meadows in moist to wet soil. It features rigid stems with densely packed spikes of disk flowers that bloom from July to August above a tuft of grass-like basal leaves. The pinkishpurple blossoms offer nectar to bees, butterflies, and hummingbirds, and songbirds enjoy the seeds that develop.

Liatris scariosa, known as Large or Eastern Blazing Star, is an upright, clump-forming plant with a basal tuft of narrow, lance-shaped leaves and leafy flower stems. The reddish-purple, thistle-like flowers are spaced along the stems on short stalks and bloom from August into October. This species grows in full sun and dry to moist soils and is tolerant of summer heat and humidity but not wet soil in winter. Like Gayfeather, its inflorescences bloom from top to bottom, attracting bees and butterflies to borders and cottage gardens.

Eastern Blazing Star (Liatris scariosa)

Scaly Blazing Star (Liatris squarrosa) has one or more erect, unbranched stems one to three feet tall with relatively few small, linear leaves. The tuft-like red-violet flower heads are widely spaced on a spike at the top of the stems and begin blooming in June for about a month. This species prefers full sun and dry soil that is rocky or sandy in texture. It can be used in small groups in the middle of borders or pollinator gardens where it attracts bees, butterflies, moths, and hummingbirds.

Scaly Blazing Star (Liatris squarrosa)

Dwarf Blazing Star (Liatris microcephala), native to the southern Appalachians, is the most diminutive species, measuring 1 to 2 feet tall. It has a mounded tuft of grass-like basal leaves and clusters of four to six orchid-colored disk florets spaced along multiple upright flower stems from July into October. This drought-tolerant plant grows best in full sun and lean, dry soil with good drainage, especially in winter. It is an excellent accent or edging plant for border fronts and rock gardens where it attracts butterflies and hummingbirds.

Dwarf Blazing Star (Liatris microcephala)

Remote Work and Mobility

Working from home became the reality for many individuals during the pandemic. Recent data identified remote work and mobility as a huge influence on the real estate market. The pandemic universally caused a movement away from urban cores particularly for those with higher incomes who could afford to move and for lower-income individuals seeking lower costs of living. Most of these relocations remained within their original region (84%) and, while some are returning, it is unknown as to the permanence of these movements or whether they are a true urban exodus. With the added mobility remote work offers, where people are moving and where they can ultimately purchase a home is less dependent on a physical office location. This flexibility is giving remote workers the opportunity to move to more affordable areas, buying more home for their money.

For first time buyers, the low housing inventory home prices are growing almost seven times faster than renter incomes, making what was likely already the biggest challenge for first-time home buyers — saving for a down payment — even more difficult. But there is good news for today's first-time buyers: With record low mortgage rates, monthly payments are affordable even with a smaller down payment, and flexible work options are providing new opportunities for many to buy a home in a less-expensive area if they don't have to commute to the big city. And while housing supply is still low, we are seeing steady increases in the number of homes coming to market, which gives hope to homebuyers. As the supply of homes for sale improves, buyers will have more options. Are you living in your ideal home now? If you are thinking of a new lifestyle, I'm glad to help you research and discuss options.

Cliff saw a great increase in the number of daily visitors to Glencarlyn Park during the pandemic. As a result, he hopes more people will recognize the value of Arlington's parks and green spaces, and appreciate the naturalists who educate people and protect the county's natural resources. "It's widely understood that being active and outdoors in nature is good for both mental and physical health," he said.

Cliff doesn't yet have specific plans for retirement, but he says he intends to volunteer his services in areas such as promoting the conservation of natural resources. He and his wife, Karen, who is also an avid bird watcher, intend to travel in the United States and abroad to visit parks and nature reserves where they can birdwatch and explore nature in new locations.

Yet, don't be surprised if you also happen to see Cliff walking the trails through Glencarlyn Park. "I'm a compulsive interpreter of nature," he says. "When I'm retired, you'll probably see me hanging out in the park and talking to people about what they're looking at."
